PITCHING PUDDINGS

The northern English town of Ramsbottom has hosted the annual World Black Pudding Throwing Championship which was won by the first participant of the day. Contestants are given three chances to knock down as many three kilogram Yorkshire or Black puddings off a platform as possible. This year's winner was 50-year-old, Gavin Ogden, who knocked down at least six puddings. Every year, the event attracts thousands of people to the village with the tradition dating back to the 15th Century where soldiers who ran out of ammunition resorted to throwing food in battle. The event was revived in the 1980s and has been a popular custom in the town since. Chris Woolfall, one of the organisers, said, "About 400 people have turned out for the event. People travel from all over the world to take part and watch. One year we had a competitor from Australia." Chadwick's Original Bury Black Puddings provided over 300 puddings for the championship.

SILENCE DEVICE

A library in New Zealand has installed a device to ensure peace and quiet amongst visitors. Following complaints of young people being noisy, the Papanui Library, located in the South Island city of Christchurch, launched a device that emits a high-frequency buzz heard only by people under the age of 25. The device is hoped to deter youths from loitering outside and intimidating other library visitors, but, has also received some criticism. Thomas Beagle, the head of the New Zealand Council for Civil Liberties, stated, "Libraries should be places where children and teenagers are welcome, not excluded by deliberately making them uncomfortable." Regardless, Carolyn Robertson, head of libraries at the Christchurch City Council, said, "Recent customer feedback said the device has helped to manage the behaviour and customers feel safer entering our libraries."

RED JELLYFISH REVEALED

Locals have been left scratching their heads following the discovery of a unique red jellyfish on a Gold Coast beach. Scott McKenna stumbled across the strange specimen during a walk at Southport and said, "I saw it there and I thought it was unusual so I scooped it up in a coffee cup and brought it home and took a few photos. I just saw that it had tentacles on it and was just wondering if it was a baby." The Australian Marine Stinger Advisory Services (AMSAS) suggested the discovery was potentially a sub-set of the jellyfish species pelagia noctiluca. Director of AMSAS, Lisa-Ann Gershwin admitted that both the Gold Coast and Sydney tend to experience an influx of the animals each year and said the find was, "extremely exciting because it's not yet named and classified for real. Also, it's beautiful. It really is a lovely species." For now, the unusual red jellyfish is known as "the purple people eater".

HUNGRY FOR HAMDOG

A Perth based businessman has created one of the craziest fast-food hybrids ever. The Hamdog, was originally invented in 2004 by Mark Murray who in 2009 obtained a patent for the strange shaped bun. The Hamdog was once described by Murray as "a party in your mouth" and features a standard hamburger with small bread extensions on the side to accommodate the placement of a hotdog down the middle. Last year, Murray appeared on the television Shark Tank to reveal his creation, but, judges were not impressed. More recently, Murray started selling the Hamdog in Perth and claimed "since then, it's gone ballistic." The plan for Murray and his Hamdog is to expand nationally and eventually globally with the entrepreneur stating, "It's good to see people interacting with a food that's a bit of fun." Murray also has his sights on the American market claiming that, "Americans eat 50 billion burgers a year.

If we can get one per cent of their market, that's $2-3 billion in sales."

GUGGENHEIM'S GOLD TOILET

One of the most famous museums in the world, the Guggenheim in New York, has launched an exhibition showcasing the world's most extravagant toilet which is completely covered in 18-carat gold. Created by Italian artist, Maurizio Cattelan, the masterpiece is fully-functional within a unisex cubicle and available for public use when you purchase a $19.95 ticket to visit the museum. The unique artwork is titled "America" with Cattelan wanted to "evoke the American dream" and make "available to the public an extravagant luxury product seemingly intended for the one per cent." In a statement, the Guggenheim said, "Its participatory nature, in which viewers are invited to make use of the fixture individually and privately, allows for an experience of unprecedented intimacy with an artwork." The pricey potty is estimated to be valued between $1.4 million and $2.5 million with museum staff required to clean the gold-covered toilet every 15 minutes to ensure it remains hygienic.

TUNES FOR FELINES

A musician has created an album of music specifically for cats. David Teie, a scientist and cellist in the US National Symphony Orchestra raised hundreds of thousands of dollars via crowdfunding and has already sold 10,000 copies. The animal targeted tunes have been so popular that Universal Music has offered Teie a record deal for his album 'Music For Cats'. The music was designed based on Teie's scientific theory that felines appreciate music through the sounds they hear as kittens, including their mother's purr or birds chirping. Teie suggested the sounds can help calm feral cats and said, "It is communication in the cat's language, of acceptance and understanding and the comfort that goes along with that." One spokesman for Universal Music admitted they were "thrilled to be part of this world-first project and break into the massive untapped market of non-human music fans...The possibilities are endless for more species-specific 'Music For' albums - dogs and horses could all be on the cards."

GARBAGE GARMENTS

An American environmentalist with the aspiration to alter how Americans think about their rubbish footprint has committed to wear every piece of trash he creates for a month. In an announcement on his website, Rob Greenfield "is going to live like the average American. He'll eat, shop, and consume just like the average American which produces 4.5 pounds of trash per day. The catch? He has to wear every piece of trash he creates." By the end of the month, it is expected Greenfield will be wearing almost 63 kilograms of rubbish likely to include coffee cups, plastic bags and pizza boxes. The concept behind Greenfield's "TrashMe" project is to demonstrate the cumulative effects of garbage with many people not thinking just how much rubbish they throw away every month. Greenfield's main aim is to encourage people to consider and limit the amount of waste they generate.

GRAVY WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIP

A group of men and women donned fancy dress to participate in the recent World Gravy Wrestling Championships. Participants came from all over Britain to be cheered on by spectators as they tackled the meaty mixture which usually accompanies a roast dinner. Held at the Rose 'n' Bowl pub in Lancashire, England, contestants wrestled each other in a padded pool of gravy to raise money for a local hospice. One participant, Joel Hicks, said, "If you can stay on your feet and get the upper hand on your opponent, it allows you to throw them and toss them around. But, if you can't get any balance then you're just straight over." According to the rules, competitors wrestled in two-minute sessions to score points based on their moves, as well as, the applause generated from the audience. The event is held annually and uses 1,000 litres of gravy.

UPSIDE DOWN DINING

A German cafe has become a huge success on social media whilst confusing the minds of many tourists. Located at Wertheim, near Frankfurt, the Toppels' Roadside Cafe opened earlier this year adjacent to what looks like a family home except that it is completely upside down. The structure is built on its roof where in the bathroom, the sink, bath and toilet are all topsy-turvy encouraging visitors to take photos with their heads in the toilet. Whilst in the kitchen, all of the tables and chairs are upside down along with the kitchen appliances and even a basket of fruit. The attention to detail continues with a car hanging from an upside down carport. Next door to the reversed house is a cafe which also belongs to the imaginary family called the Toppels. The cafe is popular with tourists driving past and also serves coffee in inverted mugs whilst visitors sit on the ceiling in seats resembling lampshades.

CREEPY GARDEN

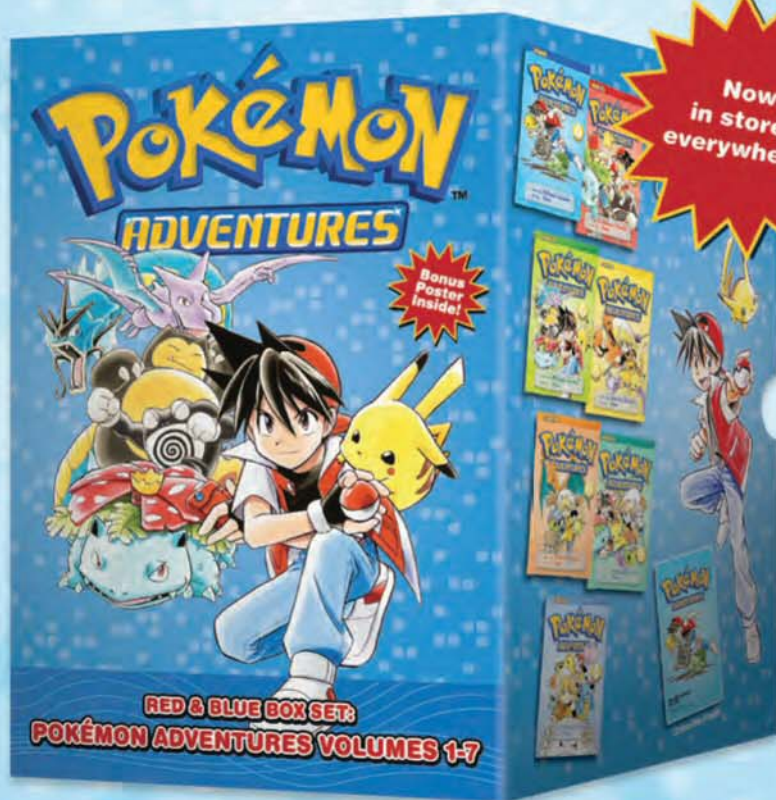

An abandoned garden in Japan's Toyama has been filled with 800 life-like statues that appear to follow and watch your every move. Created in the 1980s following the request of a successful local businessman named, Mutsuo Furukawa, the sculpture filled garden has an estimated value of over $78 million. According to Furukawa, the statues represent people from his life, Buddhist deities, as well as, a sculpture resembling himself to overlook the garden. Photographer, Ken Ohki, visited the park and described it as "chilling" and said, "You come to feel like something is moving every time you turn around." Known as Fureai Sekibutsu no Sato, which translates to "the village where you can meet Buddhist statues", the garden attracts many tourists keen to witness the hundreds of eerie figures. The lawn ornaments are spread all over the garden with some lined up in rows and others scattered over the hills and long grass.

BLASTOISE V

STATUS:

Blastoise is a Water-type Pokémon species who features in the popular gaming, comic and television franchise.

STYLE:

Resembling a large tortoise, Blastoise's dark blue body is covered by a strong shell which encases two water cannons. Blastoise has claws on his hands and feet, as well as, a stubby tail.

PERSONALITY:

With a competitive and slightly rebellious nature, Blastoise enjoys combat and is also highly intelligent.

FRIENDS:

Blastoise is open to new friendships and is mostly drawn to other Water-type Pokémon.

SKILLS:

This particular Pokémon's two retractable cannons can spray bullets of water with great power and accuracy.

FINAL STATS

Status: Darth Vader scores the status points being the original evil villain.

Style: We're voting for Blastoise and his super powered water cannons!

Personality: Sorry Darth Vader, you're outlook on life is too negative.

Friends: An army of loyal troops versus a group of Pokémon. We call a tie.

Skills: Darth Vader wins hands down with his harnessing of the Force.

wrestle match - every month!
our predictions then YOU decide!

DARTH VADER

STATUS:

The mysterious Darth Vader is a Jedi Knight who was seduced by the dark side of the Force and transformed into an evil Sith Lord.

STYLE:

Darth Vader represents an intimidating style by dressing in black from head to toe and wears a full face mask to disguise his true identity.

PERSONALITY:

Being fairly quiet and serious, Darth Vader is an individual who does not tolerate incompetence or disrespect.

FRIENDS:

As a strong-willed leader, Darth Vader has a group of dedicated soldiers who support his evil plans.

SKILLS:

Along with impressive light-saber skills, Darth

Vader can harness the Force to inflict telekinesis, pain and telepathy on others.

THE HYUNDAI RN30

Forget Hyundai - this is the Hoon-day concept you never saw coming!

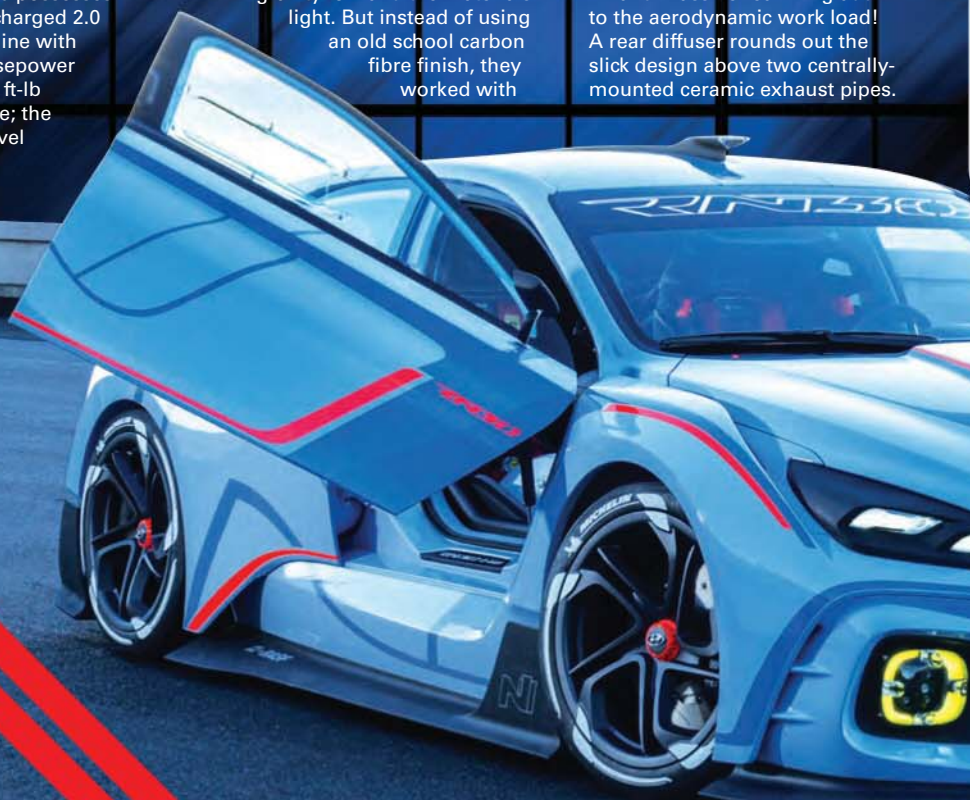

Feast your eyes peeps. This is a project like no other - a steroid-pumping version of the Hyundai i30N production car coming next year. Known as the RN30 concept, it is absolutely nutso - and what's not to love about a fiery caged up track beast with Lambo doors??

Taking ideas from their insane big-winged, big-flared i20 World Rally Championship cars, the RN30 possesses a turbocharged 2.0 litre engine with 374 horsepower and 332 ft-lb of torque; the same level of power as its i20-based 2017 WRC challenger, and the Mercedes-AMG A45! A wet-type dual-clutch transmission lets you put the power down with flash-like quickness thanks to uber cool flip paddles. The sport mode onboard checks your revs and cues the Electronic Variable Exhaust to be louder - sick! The boys at Hyundai also wanted to keep the centre of gravity low and the materials light. But instead of using an old school carbon fibre finish, they worked with some slick scientists at the BASF chemical company to develop a new lightweight high-performance plastic for many parts on the RN30 - even the 19 inch wheels are lightweight alloys!

The pumped up air intake in the hood lets everybody know this little machine means business, while the fenders work with the side splitters to produce down force, and the big centre fin and massive rear wing add to the aerodynamic work load! A rear diffuser rounds out the slick design above two centrally-mounted ceramic exhaust pipes.

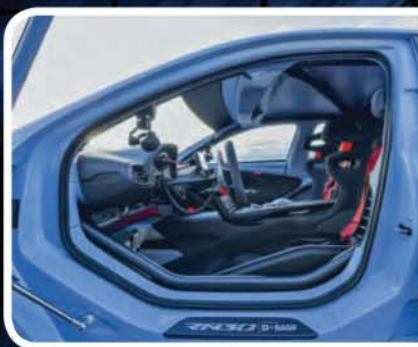

The butterfly doors are all Lamborghini, while the floating C-Pillars that join the super-sized roof spoiler are all BMW i8. The popped wheel arches add 30mm width compared to the standard i30, while the suspension is super slammed, dropping the roof 84mm closer to the ground!

The interior is all race car, stripped out with bucket seats and roll caged with a low seating position leading to a screen which controls the car's many freaky functions!

So, shall we expect to see this on our streets soon? Only time and the car gods know, but either way, we like where this is going!

BILLIE KAY

Sydney-born Billie Kay is headed Down Under for the first ever WWE NXT Live tour of Australia and New Zealand.

KRASH: How did you get into WWE NXT?

Billie Kay: I was a huge WWE fan growing up and used to watch it on TV with my brother. I started training with a local school in Sydney, spent eight years making a name for myself on the independent scene and in 2014 was lucky enough to be contacted by WWE for a try-out in Melbourne. The try-out lasted three days and after that I was offered a contract with NXT and moved to America last year.

KRASH: So what's it like at the WWE Performance Center in Florida?

Billie Kay: It's absolutely incredible. We have seven rings, an awesome strength and conditioning gym and coaches and a lounge for all the talent to hang out.

KRASH: There are a few Aussies there now...?

Billie Kay: Yes! There's myself and Peyton Royce who is also from Sydney, Buddy Murphy and Emma from Melbourne and TM61, an Aussie tag team from Perth. We all hang out and talk about missing laminations and Tim Tams.

KRASH: What are your advantages in the ring?

Billie Kay: I'm one of the tallest girls in the NXT Women's Division (174cm) and have extremely long legs. They come in handy for my Big Boot finishing move, where I get my right leg and smash it in my opponent's face.

KRASH: What's been your toughest match so far?

Billie Kay: My match with Asuka, the NXT Women's Champion. She's from Japan and she's got lethal kicks. Getting kicked by her hurts!

KRASH: What can you tell us about the WWE NXT Live tour?

Billie Kay: I'm so excited because WWE NXT is coming to Australia for the first time ever in December so I'll get to perform in my home town of Sydney. The atmosphere and energy of these shows have to be seen to be believed so come along and be loud — cheer, do chants and immerse yourself. It's going to be an incredible ride. I can tell you that Peyton Royce will definitely be coming too and I'm hopeful that all six NXT Live is headed to Australia and New Zealand for the first time ever this December and we've got double passes to give away to each of the shows in Auckland (5th), Wellington (6th), Melbourne (8th), Newcastle (10th), Gold Coast (11th), Sydney (13th), Canberra (14th) and Perth (15th). See page 10 for entry details. Competition closes December 24.

So far it's been announced that the following NXT Superstars are coming: NXT Champion Shinsuke Nakamura; NXT Women's Champion Asuka; NXT Tag Team Champions The Revival; Samoa Joe; Hideo Itami; Bobby Roode; Billie Kay; Peyton Royce.

YOU KNOW THAT MOMENT WHEN YOU USING A STRAW TO BLOW BUBBLES INTO YOUR DRINK AND THEN IT OVERFLOWS? THAT IS HOW FULL GAMESTA IS WITH GAMES THIS MONTH!

WHAT'S EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT?

The next Nintendo game for mobiles has been announced and it's the one we've been waiting for! Called Super Mario Run, it's a platformer that can be played on iOS with one hand, and it will be out in December.

In sadder news, the mobile games Nintendo has planned for the Animal Crossing and Fire Emblem series have been pushed back to 2017 – oh well.

Pokémon Go has now been downloaded over 500 million times – wow! The Pokémon Go Plus peripheral – which is like a watch that indicates when a Pokémon is nearby – is finally out in Australia, too.

Just announced for PS4, PC and XBO is Naruto Shippuden: Ultimate Ninja Storm 4 Road To Boruto, an expansion to the cool fighting game that follows the storyline from Boruto: Naruto the Movie. It will be out in February.

A building game similar to Minecraft, but based on the famous Asterix and Friends comics has just released. You can get it on iOS and Android mobiles and tablets.

Activision has just released an app called Skylanders Creator, which is a character builder that lets you invent your own Skylander. You can even get them printed out, for a cost, so they will work with the new Skylanders Imaginators game.

We finally have a release date Kingdom Hearts HD 2.8 Final Chapter Prologue on PS4; it will be out on January 24.

Minigame series Carnival Games is coming back, but it will be a virtual reality experience.

Action-RPG Dragon Ball Fusions has been announced for 3DS; it's a spin-off game coming out in February next year.

If you were holding out hope of playing Mario in virtual reality one day, we have bad news. His creator, Mr. Miyamoto, has said VR is not social enough for the famous hero. So he has no plans to make a Mario VR game.

Incredibly sad news for racing fans, with word that Gran Turismo Sport has been delayed till 2017 – doh!

The makers of the Pokémon series have confirmed that they are making a new Pokémon title for upcoming Nintendo NX console. Awesome!

Build for fun. Build for Adventure. Build to save the world!

NINTENDO LAND

As we get closer to Christmas, we sure hope you have saved plenty of space on your wish list for all the great games Nintendo still has coming out.

NINTENDO DROPS A TONNE OF NEWS

EVERY NOW AND AGAIN NINTENDO DOES A BIG SHOW ONLINE CALLED NINTENDO DIRECT, DURING WHICH THEY DROP A LOT OF BIG NEWS AND FOOTAGE. AND ONE JUST HAPPENED! LET'S TAKE A LOOK THROUGH THE TOP 10 BITS OF NEWS:

1. A new downloadable pack for Hyrule Warriors and Hyrule Warriors Legends has added in a great new character. It's Toon Link, and he comes with new weapons, the Phantom armour, a sand wand and magic abilities.

2. The StreetPass Mii Plaza has received a huge upgrade and you can now meet up to 100 people at once, not just 10.

3. Mario Sports Superstars has been announced for the 3DS. It is coming in autumn 2017 and will feature five sports - baseball, soccer, tennis, golf and horse racing - for the stars of the Mushroom Kingdom to play.

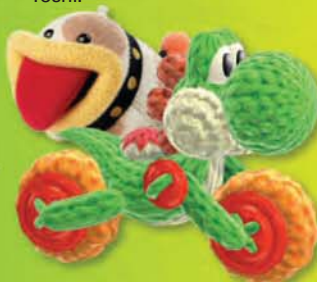

4. The awesome Pikmin series is coming to the 3DS in 2017 for the first time. It will be a sidescrolling strategy adventure, with players using the touchscreen to guide the different types of Pikmin around.

5. You can now play the last great console Zelda game, called The Skyward Sword, on the Wii U. You can download it through the eShop.

6. Awesome platformer Yoshi's Woolly World is coming to the 3DS under a new name. It's called Poochy & Yoshi's Woolly World, because you can now play as the dog character, and team up with three of his puppies when playing as Yoshi.

7. Picross 3D Round 2 has been announced for the 3DS, coming in 2017. It's a sequel to the popular puzzle game that released on the DS back in 2009.

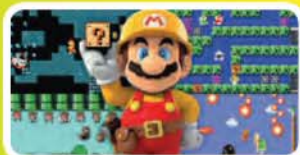

8. A new downloadable eShop game called Tank Troopers is on the way. It's an action game where you choose to control different soldiers who drive tanks with different abilities. The 3D world looks really cool and the game should be out around Christmas.

9. Dragon Quest 8 is no longer coming out this year on 3DS. That's a bit of a shame, but we have been told it will definitely be out in 2017.

10. The release of Super Mario Maker on 3DS is expected in December. The whole awesome game from the Wii U is coming across to the handheld with only a few minor changes.

RHYTHM HEAVEN MEGAMIX (3DS)

Sometimes it's a simple gameplay idea that ends up being the most addictive. Like just tapping a beat on a touchscreen. It doesn't sound like the most epic fun of all time, but if you take that simple idea and place it in a strange collection of minigames, you have something that is way more fun than it should be. Rhythm Heaven Megamix does have a story with lots of characters to meet, where you help Tibby get back to Heaven World by restoring flow to the universe.

- Of course you restore flow by creating a rhythm and there are 100 minigames you will battle through to help you do that. It makes for a lot of variety, and you will do activities that range from simply hitting drums

- or punching objects, to more complicated actions like playing badminton while sitting on the back of a moving fighter jet! There's sole challenges, boss battles and multiplayer as well, giving this simple gameplay idea lots to do. Once you start, you won't be able to stop.

SEGA 3D CLASSICS COLLECTION (3DS)

We've lost track of the number of times Sonic and the other stars of Sega's old consoles have been re-released, but that does not stop them being any fun. There are nine old-school games available in this collection and while they keep their old visuals and sounds, they have still been worked on to make them play and feel great on the 3DS. This includes faster visuals and, of course, 3D. The games come from a good mix of genres, too. Power Drift offers fun and fast arcade racing. Puyo Puyo 2 is a puzzle game like Tetris. Altered Beast is a sidescrolling beat 'em up. Thunder Blade is a helicopter shooter, while Galaxy Force II is a flight shooter set in space. Fantasy Zone II is a colourful, sidescrolling blast 'em up. Maze Hunter 3-D is like a dungeon crawler. Plus you get the original Sonic the

- Hedgehog, with the spin-dash ability and 3D visuals added on. That's a lot of good old-school fun in one place and if you can handle the retro feel, it's great value.

POKÉMON SUN

POKÉMON MOON

There are few things more exciting than a new Pokémon game, and the arrival of Sun and Moon is well worth a party. Nintendo has put a stack of new features into this famous RPG strategy series, as well as a brand new game engine that produces the biggest environments and most gorgeous graphics yet. And it all unfolds in a tropical paradise.

Part of the fun of a new Pokémon game is exploring a brand new region, and this time around we're heading to Alola. What makes this region so cool is that it's based off Hawaii, with four big islands for you to explore. Each island is run by a Trial Captain, who will hand out a bunch of tests to new trainers and you have to complete them to win the approval of fans. If you can make it through all the tests, you can battle against the super strong Totem Pokémon, and then against the Kahuna, the ultimate judges. Now this is where things begin to get exciting. The tests aren't just the Pokémon battles that we've come to expect from the series. Now you might have to also do things like scavenger hunts, answer trivia questions and enter dancing battles. So as well as exploring for critters, evolving them and battling them as we've done in past, you also have to complete these other trials to open up access to new areas. Simply exploring Alola is also a lot more fun due to the ability to ride some of the Pokémon. You can take to the air and fly on the back of some Pokémon, or even ride big monsters like the new Mudsdale across the land. This is such a great new feature and you have to wonder why it has taken so long to be a part of the series. Combat has been improved and

BONUS FOR EARLY BUYERS

If you can't wait to get your hands on this game, then you should make sure you buy it on the day it releases. Nintendo has announced that players who get the game on day one will get free access to a special Pokémon called Munchlax. He comes with Hold Back and Happy Hour moves, which can knock a Pokémon down to 1HP and get you more money for winning battles. When you evolve Munchlax into Snorlax, he will appear in a much stronger form and with powerful Z-Moves such as the Pulverizing Pancake. Not a bad bonus.

added to, of course. The biggest addition is the new Z-Moves, ultra-powerful attacks that can only be used once in battle. Strangely they tie into a physical accessory that you wear on your wrist. Called the Z-Ring, it's a toy that not only makes you look like a trainer, but syncs to the game and allows you to activate the moves when they are ready by pressing a button. The moves look great on screen, too, with big special effects. Other new experiences you will find include the Pokémon Refresh mode, where you can do more than just train your captured critters, but actually nurture

• them back to health after battle.
• You can help heal their injuries
• or comfort them if they feel sick
• from being poisoned. This helps
• you form a stronger bond with
• your Pokémon. There is also a
• Poké Finder mode, which lets you • take photos of your Pokémon in
• action at certain places around
• the islands. The better your photo,
• the more features you unlock.
• But for many, the best fun will
• be had locating and capturing
• the new Pokémon. As well as
• the three new starters and two

• legendary Pokémon seen on
• the cover, there will be plenty
• more new faces to discover.
• Some old favourites also
• return with totally new forms,
• as they have adapted to their
• new island paradise home.
• Nintendo has clearly put a lot
• of effort into making this the
• biggest and best Pokémon
• game yet. We love being able
• to enjoy the classic gameplay
• the series is famous for, in a
• new location and with all these
• great new features. A must • own!

TECH HEAD

Let's catch up with all the latest releases in the tech world and how they can improve your gaming experiences.

Roccat Suora keyboard

A good PC keyboard can really improve your playing experience on a PC, and the latest offering from Roccat is nicely designed for pure gaming. It doesn't take up too much space as it has no frame around the outside, so you can fit it onto small desks easily. It has six macro keys you can program to do anything you want, and 11 levels of back-lighting so you can see what you're doing in the dark. Plus it's super durable, made of aluminium and really responsive mechanical keys that will hold up to hours and hours of play.

iPhone 7

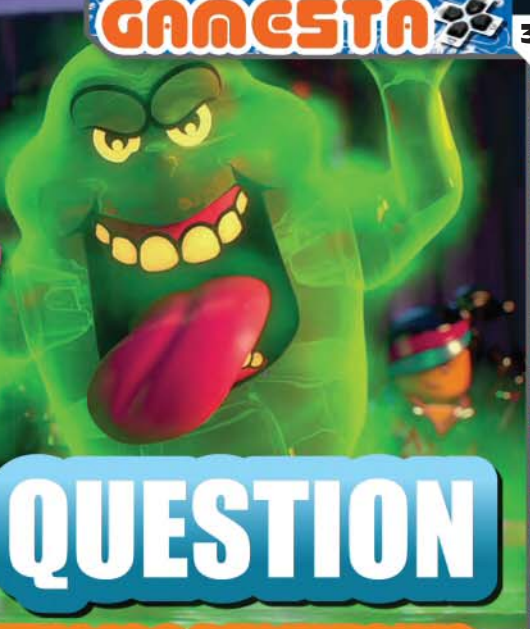

The new iPhone is out and you are probably already aware of how great this phone is with its amazing screen and touch-based gameplay. But the new phone still makes some great improvements for gamers. The processor speed has been improved to a new A10 Fusion Chip, which means faster gaming and better visuals, while also improving the battery life. There are new wireless AirPods included, which makes audio easier when gaming on the go. Plus the camera has had a huge upgrade, perfect for titles like Pokémon Go.

Parrot Disco Drone

Wow, check out this amazing new drone from Parrot, who are the masters of remote-controlled flight. It's the first time they have released a fixed-wing drone, which is just like a spy plane. It takes-off and lands automatically, but then you get to use a controller to fly it through the sky – and if it gets too hard there is an autopilot that can help out. Coolest of all, however, is the HD camera on the front. This can stream footage back to VR-like Cockpitglasses so it feels like you are actually flying for real. There's 32GB of storage, too, so you can take photos and video as you go. It's so awesome, but very expensive!

THE BIG QUESTION

WHAT'S HAPPENING WITH LEGO DIMENSIONS?

With the new Skylanders game, Imaginators, already out and Disney Infinity cancelled, you may be wondering what is happening with LEGO Dimensions. The game first appeared last year and it is pretty awesome. It allows you to build little LEGO characters, vehicles and objects that you can then transport into a game world. It really separated itself from the other games as you could build the toys and change their shape into new forms. Plus, the gameplay involved the toys in the puzzle solving, asking you to switch them around in certain ways and use certain characters at certain times to pass obstacles. Given how cool it all is, you're probably wondering why there has been no LEGO Dimensions 2 announced. The reason is because the developer is keeping the original game, but adding a whole second season of content. It is called LEGO Dimensions Year 2, and it starts this month with new content based on classic movies, TV Shows, comics and games being released all the way into next year. Because the developer has already made the base game, they could focus on making the hub worlds much bigger and jammed with more activities, characters and humour. There are also new story missions to dive into where players must stop Vortech by collecting his powers from each of the worlds. Plus there's a whole new Battle Arena multiplayer mode that allows four players to fight it out like Super Smash Bros. – very cool. We really like the selection of settings and characters that are coming out in Year 2, and think that this is a better way to do a game like this than to make a proper sequel. Why? Because you get to keep playing new content without having to buy a whole new game.

YEAR 2 CONTENT

FRESH PICS

The coming virtual reality revolution is good and all, but it will be nothing if there aren't any good games to play. Here are some to keep an eye on.

DIGIMON WORLD: NEXT ORDER (PS4)

Just announced for early March 2017 is this PS4 exclusive in the Digimon series. Similar to Pokémon in many ways, you need to find, recruit and train 215 different Digimon in the game, as you battle through a digital world. The story is quite interesting, with Machinedramons attacking the digital world with such strength you – the player – would have been killed if it was not for the fact you were rescued by two Digimon. You then partner up with these two Digimon – which is a first for the series – and then battle through the digital world in order to save it, and find a way back to the real world. Sounds crazy, but looks like fun, doesn't it?

WARHAMMER 40,000: DAWN OF WAR III (PC)

We don't get too many real-time strategy games nowadays, which is a real shame as they are a lot of fun. You get to build these awesome military bases and command all these different troops in huge battles. It's even better when it's based on a big fantasy world like Warhammer, which means great locations, cool units and big super attacks that you can unleash. As you can see from this image, there is plenty of action going on. We're really looking forward to this release for 2017.

BIRTHDAYS THE BEGINNING (PS4, PC)

This rather exciting looking game has just been announced for early next year. It's made by the guy who created the Harvest Moon series but, as you can see, this game stars dinosaurs. Similar to Minecraft, this is a creation game where you build cube-shaped worlds. The better your world, the more lifeforms are born. Depending on how you change the shape of the world, it can alter the conditions of the planet and change the type of wildlife who live there. What are really cool ideas; we cannot wait to see more.

EYE ON VR

THE VIRTUAL REALITY REVOLUTION IS NOW IN FULL SWING THANKS TO THE RELEASE OF PLAYSTATION VR, AND NOW WE GET TO START TALKING ABOUT ALL THE COOL GAMES YOU CAN PLAY WITH IT.

Have you had a chance to check out virtual reality yet? Maybe at the EB Expo or at a shop somewhere? PlayStation has even been touring its VR headset to some big shopping malls around the country. If so, you already know just how good it is! We've been able to play a few new games this month, too, and three in particular really stand out. The first is DriveClub VR. You might remember the PS4 exclusive racer DriveClub from a few years ago, which had stunning visuals and really fun racing that wasn't totally arcade, but was nowhere near as realistic as Gran Turismo. Well this new VR version is amazing – and even better when you are using a proper steering wheel set. Sitting in the driver's seat, looking around each corner, checking your mirrors and sliding into corners feels amazing. We also checked out space shooter Eve: Valkyrie. Sitting in the cockpit of a spaceship makes you feel like you are in Star Wars. The missions put you in battles big planets, fighting it out with hundreds of ships of all sizes that suddenly zoom in from hyperspace.

Weaving in and out of big freighters, dodging bullets, doing barrel rolls and flips, and blasting away at enemies is jaw-dropping.

Finally we got to check out Batman Arkham VR, which is a spin-off to the action series. It's not so much a game, and more an experience. You get to put on the famous suit and then try out all the gadgets, and if you've ever loved your comics it feels pretty amazing. We especially like trying to flick the Batarang at targets. We're not sure if there are plans to turn this into a full proper game or not, but we sure hope so. All three games are out now.

We heard a rumour that VR support might be coming to the really cool rally game WRC 6.

IS IT BETTER THAN MINECRAFT?

LAST MONTH WE BROUGHT YOU NEWS ABOUT DRAGON QUEST BUILDERS, AN EXCITING NEW GAME FROM RPG LEGENDS SQUARE ENIX, BUT WE COULDN'T WAIT TO TELL YOU MORE ABOUT IT. COULD THIS BE THE GAME THAT FINALLY KNOCKS MINECRAFT OFF ITS PERCH AS THE NUMBER ONE SANDBOX EXPERIENCE?

GAME: Dragon Quest Builders
FORMAT: PS4, PS3, Vita
RELEASE: Out Now
DEVELOPER: Square Enix

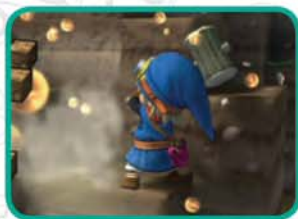

Minecraft is one of the biggest and best games of all time, but it does have its flaws. The graphics are really old-school for starters, there's no real story to follow, and if you're not sure what to do, it doesn't give you any direction. Plus, it's been out a long, long time and we have kind of played it to death. It's time for a change and to try something new, right? So the arrival of Dragon Quest Builders couldn't have come at a better time.

The basic idea behind Dragon Quest Builders is to provide an experience similar to Minecraft, where you explore, craft and build objects in a large open world. However, it adds in all those elements that were missing. So you get a story to follow, you get quests and plans to help guide you towards creating impressive buildings and objects, and you get super colourful modern graphics in a world inspired by the Dragon Quest series. It feels really new and fresh, without sacrificing the best elements of what makes the genre so much fun. The game's story feels a lot like an RPG. Once upon a time a great hero battled against an evil force, but was tricked and defeated. Monsters then took over the land, destroying much of the civilization, leaving only ruins and poor survivors that have nowhere to live and nothing to do. Then you come along; a new hero. And your special power is the ability to craft and build. It's your job then to explore the world, gather materials and rebuild society block by block.

This story immediately creates a different feel for Dragon Quest Builders over every other game in the Minecraft genre. Instead of just trying to survive and build a little house for yourself,

DID YOU KNOW

Main games in the Dragon Quest series are expected to be coming to the new Nintendo NX console and possibly even for its launch.

you need to build whole towns and somewhere that survivors can come and start to rebuild their lives. You start off small and build simple things like a bedroom. But then it gets much, much bigger.

That's because the more work you do, the more people come to live in your town. And they then give you quests, like building certain types of furniture. And once you have built one successful town, you can go further out into the world and find new places to build and re-create. You do this until you eventually return the world to its previous glory. Having this constant set of direction is actually pretty handy – you can still choose what you want to do and build, but if you're unsure what to do, the game will help.

The controls and inventory are similar to Minecraft and anyone who has played that game will feel immediately at home. The combat is also the same, which is a bit simple for the Dragon Quest series. The main games feature turn-based combat offering a lot of strategy, where in this game you just whack enemies with weapons as fast as you can. But that is ok, as this isn't meant to be an action game.

Dragon Quest Builders doesn't replace Minecraft, but rather builds on the idea with new and exciting features. There's a great sense of humour to everything as well, with the developer happy to poke fun at the genre and the series as the story goes along. Which means if you like one game, you will really like the other and we totally recommend checking Dragon Quest Builders out.

WHAT'S HOT

We defy gravity, race on dirt, build with blocks, kick butt and ride rollercoasters in another epic month in gaming.

GRAVITY RUSH 2

PS4

Gravity Rush is an action game that is really different from everything else out there and quite exhilarating. You play Kat, the heroine from the first game, fighting the good fight in a floating city broken up into lots of islands. What makes Kat so cool is she can control gravity; so she can leap off a building, then switch gravity around, and fall through the sky or across large gaps to new areas. The controls are excellent and making these gravity jumps is really fun. The big improvement on the first game is that combat now makes good use of her gravity changing skills. It feels deeper and more fun as a result. You can even switch between two styles as you fight, become light and agile or heavy and strong. The story follows straight on from the last game, too, and Kat's sometimes rival, sometime friend, Raven return. And it all looks great; the strange city, its animals and its people all look amazing. An action game with a real difference!

DID YOU KNOW?

The first Gravity Rush game was recently remastered and released on the PS4.

LEGO HARRY POTTER COLLECTION

PS4

You don't need us to explain what Lego is, or Harry Potter for that matter. And we're sure you know all about the Lego adventure games by now – they're so much fun. You and a friend get to explore the worlds and scenes from famous movies, building your way past puzzles and defeating bad guys. There's always plenty of humour, too. Last generation two Lego Harry Potter games came out, one covering the first four films, and then one covering the last four. They're two of the best games in the series, smartly implementing spell casting and potion making into the gameplay, and offering a cool recreation of Hogwarts to explore. Now both games have been packaged together, given a graphics polish, and released on the PS4.

Plus, it includes two DLC packs adding an extra 10 characters and five spells to the original games. If you love your adventure gaming, this pack offers a tonne of great gaming.

GAMESTA VERDICT: IT'S MAGIC

FINAL FANTASY XV

PS4, XBO, PC

Yes, that XV in the title means this is the fifteenth game in the main series. Crazy! Thankfully Final Fantasy just keep getting bigger and more beautiful. It's a classic old-school kind of RPG, with lots of characters and a big long story. The star is Noctis, the crown prince of the last nation in the world to use magic. They have been at war with another big nation who is focused on machines and weapons, but they are trying to find peace. So Noctis is set to be married to the princess of the rival nation, but it turns out to be a trick and his home city is destroyed. If that wasn't bad enough, then a supernatural force invades. It's pretty complex, but don't worry about it too much. Instead focus on the fast-paced gameplay unfolds in real-time, but has lots of strategy behind it as you and your group work together complete quests. There's also a huge world to explore by free-running, car or animal. Plus epic monsters to battle against and even summon. A huge RPG.

GAMESTA VERDICT: EPIC GAMING

PLANET COASTER

PC

Very exciting guys – it's a new theme park creator. Awesome! Your goal is to build awesome rides and attractions to get the most amount of happy visitors. However, the coolest parks not only have crazy rides, but smart planning and management. So you also have to place paths, places to eat, toilets, trees, bins, seats, shops and plenty more – like totally everything. There is a great mix of styles, ride types and construction options, which means you really feel like you are creating your own unique theme park. You can even alter the terrain to give your theme park a crazy look.

You can share it all online of course, to a place called the Global Village where others can see your work. It can take a while to get used to all the options and how to build them, but nothing feels better than riding a crazy rollercoaster you created. Especially in crash mode, when your cart can go flying off through your theme park causing all kinds of damage. Love it!

DID YOU KNOW?

The developer of Planet Coaster also made Rollercoaster Tycoon, Zoo Tycoon and Thrillville.

GAMESTA VERDICT: SO MUCH FUN

DRAGON BALL XENOVERSE 2

PS4, XBO

Dragon Ball is going big for its first proper next-generation game. It starts with the hub city, which is seven times larger than the first game and can have up to 300 players in it when you are online. There's new characters and impressive new boss fights, too – this includes Expert Missions where you team up with five other players to take down huge bosses. A lot of work has been done on the customisation options allowing you to go into a lot more detail when designing your own fighter. And, of course, the visuals are much better. The story is quite interesting as well, allowing you to travel back in time and change some of the big moments from the TV show; something big time fans will love. If you don't want to cruise around the open world, meet characters and do these story missions, then you can just go into combat which is wonderfully over-the-top and crazy fun. Everything a Dragon Ball fan could want.

GAMESTA HEAT 🔥🔥🔥🔥🔥

GAMESTA VERDICT: EXPLOSIVE FIGHTING

OVERCOOKED

PS4, XBO

We don't get too many great games to play co-op with friends on the same couch anymore, which is a real shame. It's the best way to play in our opinion. Hooray then for Overcooked! Not only is it a co-op game you can play with your friends, but it's awesome fun. You and up to three friends need to manage a kitchen, cooking up awesome food. When an order will come in, you all need to work as a team to cook the recipe. It sounds simple, but each level takes the same recipes and puts them in a crazy situation where cooking them is very hard. Like you might be on blocks of ice floating down a river, or dodging pedestrians, or trying to beat a conveyor belt, or standing on the back of moving trucks. The levels keep providing more and more wild ideas and there is always a timer keeping the pressure on. We love everything about this game, but you will want to play it with friends – either in co-op or against each other. It loses a bit of its flavour solo.

DID YOU KNOW?

Overcooked is published by the guys that made the awesome Worms series.

GAMESTA HEAT 🔥🔥🔥🔥🔥

GAMESTA VERDICT: TASTY TREAT

MOTO RACER 4

PS4, XBO

We love a good bike game and the latest in the Moto Racer series does something very exciting indeed – it combines two experiences into one. So as well as getting a classic road racing motorbike experience, you get an off-road dirtbikes, too. This includes jumps and stunts. The visuals don't look quite as flash as some of the top racing games out there, but the action feels really fast and you get a good mix of environments as well as day and night races. Plus, you can race in first-person mode if you are really up for challenge and want to feel the thrill of racing on two wheels. Especially when you need to dodge traffic in the Police Pursuit mode! You can choose and customise one of 10 riders and 11 bike in the career mode, which features 18 races. There's a splitscreen multiplayer mode (yes!) and you can also go online to race against 10 other players at once. Did we mention you can do wheelies? Cool!

GAMESTA VERDICT: BURNING RUBBER

WRC 6

PS4, XBO

We've always wanted the official games from the World Rally Championship (WRC) to be as good as games like Dirt and Forza, but it has never quite got there. Until now! The latest game in the series finally looks and drives as good as the other rally games. But you also get all the official content. That means all the teams, all the drivers and all 14 of the WRC events, which is a lot of terrain to race over in many different environments. Unlike the first game, this has been made specifically for PS4 and Xbox One, which has allowed the developer to not only do a lot more with the visuals and to create longer stages, but also work on the physics, the audio, the damage and the general handling. So racing feels much better. If you found the recent Dirt Rally way too hard, then WRC 6 is definitely going to be more to your liking, with easier handling and still a lot of content.

DID YOU KNOW?

There is also an eSports component to WRC 6, so if you're racing online, you can actually go in a proper international competition.

YO-KAI WATCH 2: FLESHY SOULS AND BONY SPIRITS (3DS)

1. Finish the

Intro First: There are a lot of parts to Yo-Kai Watch 2 and the game spends a long time introducing you to all its components. In fact, the opening hours will be mostly spent getting through the initial story sequences and quests that teach you how to play the game. You might be tempted to go off exploring, but during the tutorial quests you unlock abilities. So it's best to just focus on the main story at first and get it out of the way.

2. Stay in the Fight: You don't directly control your Yo-Kai in battles, but don't just put your hands in your pockets to wait it out. You need to manage the fight carefully. Use your watch to rotate in new fighters when their skills are needed, and rotate out Yo-Kai that have become inspirited so you can purify them. Also be ready to activate your Soulultimate special move when the meter is full.

3. Concentrate on Tribes: There are eight tribes in the game – see boxout – and every Yo-Kai is part of one. This is important, as each tribe has a special ability it brings into battle. When planning which six Yo-Kai to bring into a fight, try and group them together based on their tribe. The more Yo-Kai you have from the same tribe in a battle, the more you increase the effect of their special abilities.

4. Find More

Yo-Kai: The Yo-Kai Meter will give you an idea of where to look, and if it starts pinging at you, move until it goes red and you are very close. If there is an object nearby, like a tree, interact with it as that is a likely hiding spot. Remember, you have items that can increase the chance of a Yo-Kai befriending you, so if you come across one you really want, use these items.

DANGER MOUSE

Danger Mouse airs daily on ABC3 and is an action and comedy animated series of the world's greatest secret agent and his side kick Penfold. His mission is to protect the world, multiple parallel universes and Willesden Green from the villainous machinations of the evil Baron Greenback!

KRASH: You've saved the world many times – what was the scariest?

DM: Some say scary, I say exciting...actually Penfold says scary, I say exciting, but saving the world is all in a day's work for us. Sometimes we do it three or four times before breakfast. When Penfold and I took on the World Wide Spider who threatened to eat the world it was suggested I was scared of spiders which is totally preposterous...there aren't any here are there?

FUN FACTS:

- The car turns into a jet and a big-wheeled beach buggy. It has an Automatic Penfold fitted as standard, along with Splat-Cannons, grappling irons and a combined washer-dryer.
- The Danger Board transforms into a surf board, a wind-surf board and an ironing board.
- The Colonel can never remember Penfold's name. Among the many things he calls him are Bunfork and Pinhead.

KRASH: How's Penfold? Have you had to save him from any trouble lately?

DM: Penfold is absolutely in top form. He was only saying the other day how much he was enjoying our new adventures especially taking on the evil Count Duckula. I think that's what he was saying. I couldn't quite hear him as he was running away in the opposite direction screaming.

KRASH: When was the last time you came face to face with Baron Silas Greenback and his henchmen?

DM: I saw him down the supermarket last week. He was in the 10 items or less queue with 12 items, THE FIEND!

KRASH: How do you go about solving the mind-boggling mysteries?

DM: Well, after Colonel K has briefed us we sit down as a highly trained team, discuss the facts at hand and then I usually ignore all that jump in the Danger Car and make it up in as most dangerous way as possible as we're going along.

KRASH: What's the best gift you have received for saving the world?

DM: Danger Agents aren't allowed to accept gifts. The opportunity of saving the world is gift enough for us. Although I did get a signed photograph from Brian Blessed when we rescued his beard from kidnappers which I'm quite fond of.

FUN FACTS:

- Danger Moth is the second greatest secret agent in the world.
- The Baron's underwater base is called Toadlantia.
- Danger Mouse lives in the same street as Sherlock Holmes, Baker Street in London.

KRASH: You've got loads of gadgets, what's your favourite?

DM: So many to choose from but my personal favourite is the ejector seat in the Mark 4. A few teething troubles as it tends to eject the car rather than the seat but we're working on it.

KRASH: Do you fancy yourself as the new James Bond? What car would you chose?

DM: I heard James Bond actually wanted to be me but that's totally understandable. When I saw him at the secret agent's monthly barbecue and Zumba night I could see he was very envious of the Danger Car. And why wouldn't he be.

FUN FACTS:

- Danger Mole is based on Jason Statham.
- Professor Squawkencluck's real first name is Professor, so she is Professor Professor Squawkencluck.
- Agent 58 comes from a long line of agents. There was an agent 57 in the original series - presumably they are related.
- Giraffe Warriors is a gaming phenomenon in the world of Danger Mouse. In the game the Giraffe Warrior character is so tall that his head is never actually seen in the game.
- The Danger Bike transforms into a jet ski and a snowmobile.

Freak Out

STRANGE SELFIES

There are selfies and then, well, there are selfies. These selfies are so freaky they've created a stir on the Internet.

ELFIE SELFIE

While visiting an elephant sanctuary in Thailand, Christian LeBlanc captured an adorable photo after a hungry elephant mistook his GoPro for food. Luckily, the gentle giant gave the GoPro back after snapping a few pictures.

SPACE SELFIE

If the key to a stellar selfie is a great backdrop, then no one can beat astronaut Aki Hoshide who snapped a photo of himself floating around in outer space. As an added bonus, he framed the reflection of the Earth from outer space in the mask of his helmet so we're all in the selfie!

SMELFIE SELFIE

Comedian and dad Adam Hills posted a picture of himself changing his daughter's dirty nappy using the hashtag #smelfie. He was then flooded with smelfies from other devoted dads who sympathised with the poo pong.

PLANE CRASH

It almost looks like a fun day on the ocean, until you see the sinking plane in the background. Ferdinand Puentes was one of nine people on board a Cessna that went down in waters off Hawaii. As he swam away from the crash, he stopped to take a selfie. Luckily everyone was rescued by the US Coast Guard an hour after.

DEATH-DEFYING

SELFIE

Kirill Oreshkin is a Russian photographer with an unusual hobby: he scales tall buildings and takes selfies. His crazy stunts have earned him the nickname 'Russian Spiderman' and 'Nut Job' since he doesn't use any safety gear.

TOP GUN

SELFIE

A Danish F-16 fighter pilot took a super cool selfie while he had missiles firing from the side of the plane. Eat your heart out Tom Cruise!

VOLCANO SELFIE

Adventurer George Kourounis was only metres away from a roaring lava lake when he snapped a selfie on Ambrym Island in Vanuatu. He was so close to the lava that splashes of it actually melted his jacket.

MONKEY SELFIE

When a monkey stole a wildlife photographer's camera and accidentally snapped some smiley selfies they went viral... and then became the subject of a lawsuit with claims the monkey owned the copyright.

PRANK'D

Terrorise your friends and family with our list of classic pranks.

THE PRANK: SNOOP PATROL

THE SET UP: This is a great prank to play if you suspect your brother or sister is snooping in your bedroom. Put a fake plastic snake in your top drawer and charge up a video camera. Tell your bro or sis that you're heading out to the shops, then grab a hiding spot in your bedroom with the video camera. Wait for them to come sneaking into your room and when they pop open your drawer, film their reaction to the fake snake.

THE PUNISHMENT: Don't stress – if they threaten to dob you in to your parents you can always blackmail them with the video footage!

TOOL KIT

- ☐ A fake plastic snake
- ☐ A video camera

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: HOLY SHEET

THE SET UP: This classic prank is an oldie but a goodie! Sneak into your brother or sister's bedroom and very carefully take off their doona and top sheet. Fold the top sheet in half horizontally and put it back on the bed so it covers only the top half of the bed. Tuck it in and carefully put the doona back on. When they get into bed that night, they'll think their bed has shrunk!

THE PUNISHMENT: No harm, no foul.

TOOL KIT

- ☐ All you need is a little courage.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: LOTTERY FAKEOUT

TOOL KIT

☐ An adult helper.

THE SET UP: This prank is great to play on anyone in your family who regularly buys lottery tickets. Record the TV lottery draw on your DVR, then ask an adult helper to buy a lottery ticket the next day with the corresponding numbers. Swipe your victim's actual lottery ticket and replace it with the rigged one. When they go to watch that night's lottery draw, put your recorded version on instead and they'll think they've won!

THE PUNISHMENT: Okay, so your punishment will depend on your victim's sense of humour. They'll be pretty disappointed so if they can't take a joke you could be in for it!

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: MR MUM

THE SET UP: Ask to borrow your friend's phone and quickly change your contact name to 'mum'. Give the phone back and wait a few hours before the games begin. Start texting weird messages to your friend – he'll think they're coming from his mum and won't be able to figure out what's going on!

THE PUNISHMENT: Watch your back. Your friend will want to take sweet revenge.

TOOL KIT

☐ Some swift phone skills.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: TAKE A LEAK

TOOL KIT

☐ A needle or pin.

THE SET UP: Save this prank for the next time your family hosts a barbeque or party and uses plastic or paper cups. Before the guests arrive, swipe the plastic or paper cups and carefully use your needle or pin to poke a few holes in the bottom of each cup, then put them back where you found them.

When your guests arrive, offer to pour them a drink and watch them spring a leak!

THE PUNISHMENT: This one comes with a punishment warning. Try to only play this prank on guests that you know have a good sense of humour, otherwise it could be a grounding for you. And make sure you only use water so it doesn't stain their clothes.

LAUGH METER

180 AERIAL TO FAKIE

TO DO THIS TRICK YOU NEED LOTS OF SPEED. GIVE YOURSELF LOTS OF ATTEMPTS TO BUILD THE COURAGE TO CLIMB A BIG RAMP LIKE THIS ONE.

STEP 1:

Swing your arms around in the direction you want to turn and the rest of your body will follow.

STEP 2:

Bring your legs into your chest so that the board will stick to your feet, look where you want to land.

STEP 3:

Get lots of speed so you can launch off and get some good air.

THIS IS THE BASICS. LOTS AND LOTS OF PRACTICE! THE FASTER YOU CAN PUSH THE FURTHER YOU'LL TRAVEL AND THE MORE FUN IT IS.

STEP 4:

This point is where most skaters bail, commit to the landing, have sticky feet.

STEP 6:

Congratulations! Now you can tell all your friends and give them the photos to prove it!

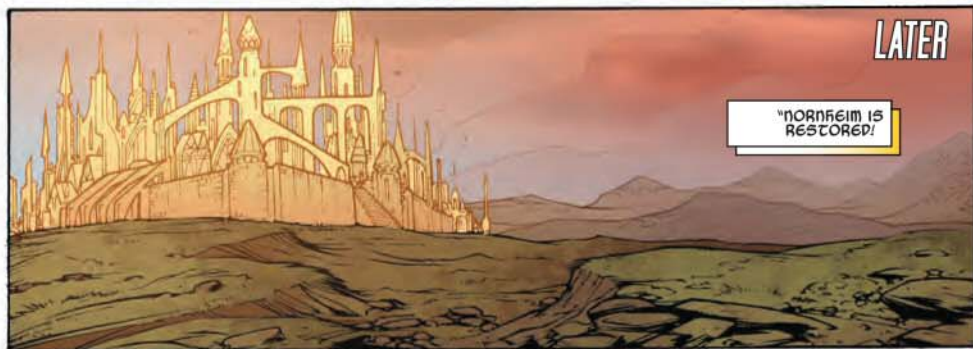

STEP 5:

When you land be sure to bend the knees and absorb impact.

SHAME OF THE MONTH

In history class one day, the teacher was talking about the nuclear bomb that had gone off in World War II and was talking about it's destructive power as it lay waste to Hiroshima. He was about to show us an audio clip of a nuke exploding and just as he pressed play I did a huge fart. Every now and then, my friends still say "hey jack, have you disarmed that nuclear bomb down your pant's yet!" It was the most embarrassing thing this year! Jack

I was at home watching TV while I was sick and wasn't feeling well and then I had to fart and I did fart but lots of poo came out and I went to the bathroom and washed my pants and threw them in the laundry so my mum wouldn't yell at me and then I took a shower. And everything in the laundry had poo smell on it. And my mum went in the laundry and yelled at the dog for the smell. Lucky no one knew then. Billy

One day at school I was doing science. I thought I was doing the right thing, but I wasn't. I started putting the sodium bicarbonate in and the whole thing EXPLODED! It dripped on me so it tore apart a bit of my pants. From that day on the whole class called me 'science freak' 'til the end of the year! Aria

One day at school, during lunch time, we were playing with water bombs. One suddenly hit me right in the crotch! All of the boys cracked up laughing at me, rolling around on the ground in pain. When my girlfriend saw me she joined the crowd of boys laughing at me as it looked like I had peed my pants. It made it even more embarrassing when even the teachers laughed at me. For the rest of the afternoon we had to go to a full school assembly and I performed on stage. It wouldn't have been so bad except I was wearing light brown pants. The whole school chuckled as they thought it was wee. Bourne

I was at the movies with my friends. after we took our seats I went to go get some popcorn. When I went back the guy that takes the tickets said I can't go through without a ticket! We were arguing for like 10 minutes. Then one of my friends came to look for me and I told the guy that that's my friend and the guy asked my friend if that were true... he giggled and said "no"! Then my friend went back to tell my other friends they came to watch. They all laughed their heads off and I caught the train home!!! MEGA EMBARRASSMENT!!! Sam

We were playing with bubbles in science and I made this massive bubble bath thingy in a tub and my friend dared me to smash my head into it so it did. I went a bit far and my hair was covered in bubble mix with bubbles all over it. I've got red hair so this guy called me old man ranger because my hair was white from the bubbles. As I was walking to the taps to clean it, I bumped my head on the DVD player in the classroom. I then ran in the door and tripped over the bin. Everyone was laughing but me. Stanley
